MONTPELIER

John H. Senter Home from Long Service in Canadian Army.John H. Senter, who has been in the Canadian army since April 1, 1915, returned home this morning. He has been in the country for a short time and this morning arrived from Burlington, where he visited Miss Clara Senter, his sister.
He will go to Boston in a few days. He went from Montpelier when Canada first went into the war and saw service during the time that the Germans were fighting the Canadians with gas and the latter did not have gas masks to protect themselves. For a couple of years he has been in service in England. He tried to get a transfer into the American army last March, but could not.
He was in some of the worst battles of the early part of the war. It was generally expected here that he was badly marked from his wounds, but Ser-gent Senter is in better shape than many a boy who has never seen a battle. He was wounded in the nose, but shows little evidence of it.E. N. Smith of Montpelier and G. G.
Kellogg of Worcester, Mass., have been appointed in probate court as administrators of the estate of Rachel Johannott, late of Montpelier.The body of Thomas Carver was taken to Waterbury this morning for the funeral, which occurred from St. Andrew's church. It was accompanied by the sons and Mrs. Campbell, a daughter of the deceased. Mr. Carver died on Thursday evening at his home in West Berlin.James Lynch, who has been visiting here, has gone back to his work for the Central Vermont railway.S. B. Bates left this morning for Bennington, where he commenced his series of county road meetings connected with the state highway work.Alderman Harry Yeti arrived home this morning from New York, where he has been in the interest of his stores. He was surprised to find conditions in Montpelier as good as they are for they were even worse in New York than here. A heavy gale accompanied the snow storm.
It was hard to get about. Many people lost their hats. Mr. Yeti found a remarkable reduction in the wholesale price of clothing and looks for a further drop in some lines shortly.County court will convene again this afternoon, when the trial of the case of Hallett and Davis vs. R. G. Robinson will be commenced. Saturday afternoon the judges heard the evidence in the case of Sadie Sawyer vs. James Sawyer, libel for a divorce on the grounds of intemperance, J. Ward Carver appearing for the petitioner. New entries on the docket include, discontinued with cost, People's National bank vs.
E. B. Martin; settled, Cook and Watkins company vs. E. C. Glysson; Van-Deusen vs. Hubbard, H. M. Farnham vs.
C. E. Emmens; new case entered, G. A.
Foley vs. Mary McFarland, general as-umpsit.P. J. Connolly worked out the facts connected with a burglary when on Saturday afternoon he forced Malcolm Lamery to tell his story of a robbery in which he, and John Magne and John Gitchell were participants last fall. All are on probation and will probably be brought into court to-day or tomorrow. The result of the story told by Lamery is that three shot guns and revolvers and 800 worth of cartridges were returned to Wheelock and Dawley, from whom they were stolen about Halloween time. In addition to this, Chief Connolly was able to learn that some $10 worth of cartridges, stolen by the boys, had been expended in revolver practice.
They were not so fortunate with the shot guns, for they took rim fire shells while the guns were center fire, so the shells would not work in the guns. Pine Brook, in looking under their shop Friday afternoon, when the water was coming up, found boxes of cartridges and notified the police of the find, with the result that Chief Connolly conducted an investigation. This brought Lamery to the police station, which resulted in taking Magne and Gitchell into custody.
Both, after considerable quizzing on the part of the police, admitted that they had part in the affair. Lamery, when he was asked where he obtained the revolver he was using the night of the armistice celebration, admitted that it came from the Dawley store.Word has been received from a couple of young men that they have returned from France and will shortly be at their homes. They are George Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Brooks, the former a merchant in Montpelier, and William B. Corry, superintendent of the Barre and Montpelier Traction and Power Co., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Corry, the former the president of the Wetmore and Morse Granite company.Miss Alice Bushnell went to her home in Waitsfield Sunday, after a visit with relatives in the city.J. P. Gallagher, agent for the Central Vermont railway, was in Boston last week. Cornelius Lawrence was acting agent while he was away.David Burns has bought C. A. Lang's interests in the firm of Lang and Burns.
Mr. Lang retired from the insurance business in the firm. The new sole owner, with J. F. Frattini and C. A. Lang, formed an insurance agency in December, 1916, which has been conducted with success since that time. Mr. Frattini retired when admitted to the practice of law.
Mr. Burns was six months in the army.
The firm has six companies on its books and is general agent for the National Surety company. Mr. Burns was formerly connected with the American Fidelity company.Webster Miller, who has been employed in the state highway office, left to-day for Ludlow, where he resumes his practice of law in the office of Stickney, Sargent and Skeels. He has a year and a half left to study.

COAL ON MOUNTAIN TOPS.

It Must Be Brought Down by Inclined Tramways.Fuel is scarce in southwestern Colorado, so the coal found in the vicinity of Mesa Verde National park is of considerable interest. The coal beds in the park are not at present minable, but those that lie northeast of the park, near Manitou, Colo., could supply a large part of the region west of the San Juan mountains, which must obtain its coal either from this field or from others farther north. The coal near Manitou is found near the tops of rugged mountains that are cut off from the Mesa by deep canyons and must be lowered down the mountain sides on inclined tramways for shipment. A mine operated in this way on Menefee mountain, at an altitude of 1,100 feet above Manitou, may be seen from the Rio Grande railroad at that town.The Manitou field is on the northern edge of a great expanse of land containing coal that ranges from a bituminous coking coal, mined at Durango, Colo., to a high grade sub-bituminous coal mined near Gallup, N. Mex. The coal near Manitou has nearly as great heating value as the coal near Durango and is of nearly the same quality as the coals of southeastern Illinois, western Kentucky, Ohio, and southeastern Kansas.Geologists describe the rocks of these mountains as the Mesaverde group, which consists of the Point Lookout sandstone at the base, about 300 feet thick, the Menefee coal-bearing formation in the middle, about 400 feet thick, and the Cliff House sandstone at the top, about 400 feet thick. The Point Lookout sandstone was named from Point Lookout, the northernmost point of the Mesa Verde National park, about seven miles southwest of Manitou, and the Cliff House sandstone was named from the prehistoric ruins in the park called cliff houses, near which it is most strikingly exposed.The coal beds are confined to the summits of the mountains and were recently examined at many places by a geologist of the United States geological survey.
They are very irregular, but at almost every place where the whole section of the coal-bearing formation is exposed, from one to four coal beds, each thick enough to mine, have been found.A report entitled "Coal south of Manitou, Montezuma county, Colorado," by A. J. Collier, describing the rocks and coal resources of this region, has just been published by the United States geological survey, department of the interior, as bulletin 691-K, and may be had on application to the director of the survey at Washington, D. C.

Taft

Mr. Taft's circle of friends is rapidly widening. No one can accuse him of selfish motives in his stand in favor of the league of nations, while everybody must admire his willingness to uphold even a democratic president as against the tendencies of the leadership of his own party in the Senate. The country owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Taft for his splendid conduct in the present crisis, for it is due largely to him that party lines have not thus far been sharply drawn on the issue of the league of nations. Mr. Mann, who was still the Republican leader in the House on Tuesday, made a notable address sustaining the Democratic president in this matter, but Mr. Mann's influence is not comparable with Mr. Taft's. For the sake of non-partisanship, it is to be hoped that those Democratic senators who have been fighting the league will keep right on.
With the Democratic senators, Thomas and Reed, joining the Republican senators, Poindexter and Borah, in a speak-ing campaign. Republicans over the country will be constantly reminded that they are not called upon to oppose the league simply because a Democratic administration is behind it.—Springfield
